DO YOU WANT A PERMANENT DAILY?
If you do your part for it, if you do your work, it can be done.

CANNON CALLS FOR HELP!

Taffy Cannons for Aid Campaign.

A small cannon is in the hands of the Socialist Worker's Aid Committee.

BEYOND PROSPECTS IN RASHE MOVEMENT.

Socialist Laborers By the Socialist National Committee.

"The Socialists are the only political force in this country that is dedicated to the complete solution of the labor problem." — W. B. Haywood.

REASON FOR DELAY.

The strike has been delayed.

COUNTRY AND CITY WORKERS.

The strike has been delayed.

MORE BABIES TO START.

Price of Milk Goes Up to 50 Cents a Gallon.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 30. — The War Department in Washington has announced that the price of milk in the capital will be increased to 50 cents a gallon.

COURT PLAYED TO THE TUNES.

A New Song for the Socialists' Aid Committee.

"The socialists are the only political force in this country that is dedicated to the complete solution of the labor problem." — W. B. Haywood.

TRAINS ON STRIKE.

The strike is on.

"The socialists are the only political force in this country that is dedicated to the complete solution of the labor problem." — W. B. Haywood.
JAMES McCArTHY.

Comrade James McCarthy works in Chicago. He is a member of the Local 102 of the Metal Workers Union and was honored by the Comrades yesterday with a resolution in the House. The Comrades of Local 102 meet at the Ohio Union Hall, 653 West Madison Street, every Thursday at 8 o'clock, and are in the process of organizing a new Local 102. The Comrades are also organizing a new Local 101, and are in the process of organizing a new Local 101, and are in the process of organizing a new Local 101.

DANVILLE PAPERS APPEALED.

Daneville District Lettered by State of Republican Editors.

The Daily Journal and the Republican Editor of Daneville, Wis., are the only newspapers published in Daneville, Wis., and are in the process of organizing a new Republican Editor. The Daily Journal is the only newspaper published in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Republican Editor.

A GRAND BALL.

The Social Man, 201 West Madison Street, is the only social man published in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Social Man. The Social Man is the only social man published in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Social Man.

A MASS MEETING.

The Daily Journal and the Republican Editor of Daneville, Wis., are the only newspapers published in Daneville, Wis., and are in the process of organizing a new Republican Editor. The Daily Journal is the only newspaper published in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Republican Editor.

TWENTY-FIFTH WARD, ATTENTION.

The meeting place of the Twenty-Fifth Ward, located at 221 West Madison Street, is the only meeting place in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Twenty-Fifth Ward. The Twenty-Fifth Ward is the only meeting place in Daneville, Wis., and is in the process of organizing a new Twenty-Fifth Ward.

Dr. E. D. Smith, an old friend of the Comrades of Daneville, Wis., and a member of the Democratic Committee, was honored by the Comrades of Daneville, Wis., last Thursday, at the Ohio Union Hall, 653 West Madison Street, with a resolution in the House.
THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

"The class struggle" is one of the fundamental causes of revolution being fought at the Socialist. We might easily suspect that there are some who believe that this struggle can be solved by a mere change of government or that it is all a question of the politics. This is not the case. The struggle is a question of the real power that is in the hands of the government, not merely of the politicians at the helm. The struggle is not a question of "the people" and their "interests," for "the people" themselves have long ago handed over the real power to others.

The struggle is with the government, the class struggle. The government is the tool of the class in power, and its actions are the result of the class struggle. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its policies are determined by the class that is in power. The government is the instrument of the class that is in power, and its decisions are made by the class that is in power.