How to Get the Means of Production and Distribution.

NO COMPENSATION GIVEN.

Dear Sirs:

May I suggest that you might consider writing a series of articles on the subject of "Compensation"? The idea of giving people compensation for their work is a very important one, and one that is often overlooked. However, if people are to have the means of production and distribution, they must be compensated for their labor. This is a fundamental principle of socialism, and one that should be clearly understood by all who seek to build a better society.

Sincerely yours,

Section 3.

The events of the last few weeks have been of the utmost interest to the socialists of the United States. The strike of the strikers of the San Francisco Maritime Labor Union, the recent vote of the socialist candidates in the national elections, and the success of the socialist movement in the country, all combine to make this period a period of great interest.

This move makes it as if he saw he was safe from all kinds of regulations, and that he was off the hook of his own inflexibility. He never made any effort to be polite to the workers, or to please them.

The workers, on the other hand, can take any comfort they wish at the fact that the wage system will remain. The workers, in fact, are the majority of the population of the world. They are the workers, and they are the ones who have the right to decide what kind of society they want to live in. They are the ones who have the right to decide what kind of system they want to see in place. They are the ones who have the right to decide what kind of future they want to have.

Public Meetings:

The Class Struggle?

The printing office of Charles H. Hinsdell on the 10th of this month was filled with the people and made the hall resound with the din of a great meeting. This idea was so much to the taste of the workingmen that they crowded the place so closely in order to be within earshot of the speaker that the windows were actually torn in by the pressure on the outside. An extra crowd gathered around the door to hear what was going on, and the people were so much excited that they did not allow the speaker to proceed until he had promised to give them a lecture on the subject of the class struggle. The meeting was then called to order and the speaker proceeded to give an account of the history of the class struggle and the results achieved by the workingmen in the fight for their rights. He then proceeded to show the necessity of the workingmen uniting in order to gain their ends, and he concluded by calling upon them to support the Workingmen's Party.

The platform of the Workingmen's Party was read, and the meeting adjourned.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29, 1899.

The Workingman's Party is still in existence, and is gaining strength every day. The party's platform is being adopted by more and more workingmen, and the party is making rapid progress. The party is organized on the principle of the class struggle, and it is determined to fight for the rights of the workingmen. The party's platform is based on the teachings of Karl Marx, and it is determined to carry out the principles of the workingmen's movement.
