Some Reasons for the Present Great Demonstrations.

AMUSEMENT FOR THE LABORER

al Adoration of a Very Co. monplace Action-All to Arouse a False Patriotism.

Today this country is in the three of a sort of "Deweymania." From one of the country to the other the press, pulpit and platform are vying with each other in heaping the most outlandish praise upon this tool of capitalism. Let us look into the matter by the sober light of reason and see we shall find in it. In the first place Dewey was educated and reared by the ruling capitalist class of this country for the work which he has been He was hired, drilled and prepared to fill his present position. All his personal interests depended upon proving himself a successful butcher. Finally there came the opportunity. His masters, the capitalist class, finding their markets limited by national lines, became suddenly interested in Spanish crueltles in Cuba, and as a means of freeing the Cubans, ord. ered Dewey, who was on the other side of the world to find and destroy the Spanish fleet. This consisted of a lot worthless warships, fily manned, poorly armored and with inferior guns and little ammunition. All of this was known to Dewey. The American spies, like those of every nation, had long known every detail of every Spanish ship on the seas. They knew her size, her armament, the men who were aboard her. They knew the jobbery and corruption that prevailed in the navy and knew that it had left everything in almost useless form. They knew, too, that Manilla bay was from three to five miles wide with a deep channel and could be mined about as easily as the Atlantic ocean. They knew that poor half-starved and ruined Spain had no money to provide torpe-does with and that the languid Spanish nature would never make the exertions necessary to lay them so extensively and rapidly as would have been neces sary to in an y render Manilla bay dangero chtering war vessels. In the derivative of the Olimpia, as in room of the Olimpia, as in merchant or navy, was a chart giving the depth of water in every part of Manilla bay. When therefore the laborers of America are asked to swallow the rot about "boldly sailing over hidden rocks and shoals, and buried mines and sunken torpedoes to attack a fleet of untried ability" they are asked to confess themselves driveling idiots and to enthuse over something that never did or could happen. entering of Manilla bay and the de-struction of the Spanish fleet was about as dangerous as climbing over sunker logs and buried rocks by a country boy in winter to boidly invade a bunch of rabbits and kill them one by one without the loss of a man of gun. Not a laborer that swings upon the footboard of a locomotive or climbs along the iron trestle-work of a sky-scraper or great steel bridge, or that goes down into the darksome depths of the mine but undergoes greater perils every day he works than was undergone by any man who on the Olympia "boldly trod the quarter-deck" or stood "undaunted within the conning tower," or ever filled a place behind the guns. then is the one honored and the other despised? Why are great celebration with gorgeous arches, barbarian illumination, and endless parades and costly gifts reserved for those who did wha they had been told to do at Manilla are treated to the policeman's club, the prison cell, and the Idaho bull-pen Workmen of America, is it not abou time you asked yourselves these ques as were the Spanish at Manilla and are crushed beneath a military despotism that will destroy your last opportunity

Can you not see that capitalism be its honors upon those who are most necessary to its perpetuation and who are its most faithful and usefu tools in the carrying on of its cam-paign of oppression and exploitation laboring class. If the capitalist class will continue to rule it must do so through militarism. 'A great standing army is necessary, not simply to extend the bonds of exploitation abroad, and open up new lands to the products of American capitalists, but wage slaves at home Therefore all honor must be bestowed upon those who perform services in this line. Enlistments must be encouraged, the military spirit of blind nce inculcated, the glamor of the opedience inculcated, the glamor of the army be burnished up by palever at home, the honors to be attained by the man with a uniform on be exaggerated by civic demonstrations. Again the virtue of "patriotism" must be impressed upon the wage slaves of American

DEWEY CELEBRATION ica. They must be made to worship the instrument that oppresses them and holds them in check when they would seek to even improve their pres ent condition to say nothing of securing their freedom. Patriotism is in this way made to mean, not love of country of liberty or humanity, but blind wor ship of government, of power, of mili-tarism, of CAPITALISM. More than that, in America, with the barefacedess which has always been characteristin of its capitalists, the farce is car ried still further and made to mean worship of the particular administration which is in power and so this whole Dewey celebration becomes a mighty Republican campaign demon-stration of which the Democrats are here and there trying to steal a little hunder.

> So the lath and plaster arches are oing up, and the long gaudy lines of electric lights are being festooned over the leading places of business in the hope that a little more trade may be attracted by their "patriotism," ong parades of wage slaves will be brought out even though It be bribe necessary to bribe their corrpt leaders, as here in Chicago. The talents of such artists as capitalnecessary to ism is able to produce must be prostituted to serve these purposes and we hear of the Chicago Art Institute executing "rush orders" and working night and day like an over-worked nail factory to produce plaster figures to decorate these artistic(?) arches. We wonder if the Venus de Medici or the Apollo Belvdeire was "built" by a class f art students working "overtime," or if the Sistine Madonna was painted at so much a foot with painting machines in the hands of a lot of pupils working by the hour, in order to get it ready for barbarian triumph? But what cares capitalism for all this? Whatsoever is in the interest of its ruling class it pushes on with reckless energy and calls upon its slaves to aid. And they, poor fools, utter never a protest, but jump into line and shout and cheer with the rest and rivet their own chains while they sing the praises of their

But this cannot be forever. There is coming a time, and its dawn is already at hand when those who toll will refuse to longer give the fruits of their labor to those who rule in idleness, and arousing to a sense of their rights and opportunities will themselves take posession of the reins of power and once and forever end the whole awful farce. When that time comes and not till then have the workers any right to be "patriotic," and then there must be many who will hide thir heads in shame because instead of taking their places in the ranks of those who fought to win this victory they were found among the camp-followers of the

Practicing on the Cubans Before Ridiculous Divisions in the Ranks Taking Americans.

General Ludlow Sets an Example For Things That Tend to Keep the Worker American Capitalists in Success fully Settling a Strike.

After the patriotic demonstrations in honor of Dewey have run their course, it would be eminently proper that the upholder of capitalist interests in Havana, General Ludlow. If the follow- who work "under" him. The clerk and ing account of his proceedings, taken the bookkeeper would be immeasurably from the Inter-Ocean are correct, he leaves General Miles distinctly in the rear in the matter of handling strikes. He deserves the gratitude of every explaiter of labor in the United States, by demonstrating to the dissatisfied Cuban workingmen (who no doubt are presuming on the "freedom" which has lately been conferred upon them), that the new up-to-date capitalism is in no way disposed to parley with discontent, and will not for one moment tolerate the demands of trades unions for higher wages or shorter hours. These very desirable objects must be "petifloned" for in the "proper manner" according to General Ludlow, and if the Cuban workmen dare attempt any other method they will find the lit-tle finger of the United States thicker than the loins of Spain. The General's "warning" it is believed "will settle the strike," and its decided tones contrast strongly with the cowardly timidity of the capitalist governor. Rivera, who fears revolution "when the strong arm of the United States no longer upholds the government.'

Rivera need not worry, as it does not ook probable that the strong arm of American capitalism will ever be withdrawn from Cuba. Our capitalist masters will not relax their grip on the island-they can use it in their busi-

For the workingmen of the United States, and especially the trades unlonists, this account is very significant. They and their class went to the front in the late war, and braved Spanish bullets, yellow fever, and embalmed beef that Cuba might be "free," and Ludlow is now showing that capitalism no respecter of persons, and that Cuban workmen on strike are entitled to and will receive exactly the same asure of "justice" as their American delieverers in like case. This is the result of the inestimable blessings of liberty, which the Cuban workmen now enjoy, and for which the working class of the United States gave their lives in thousands, for the privilege of carrying the said blessings to the downtrodden island patriots. We should im-agine that the Cuban workman who reads Ludlow's "warning" will feel much the same as the boy who lost a quarter and found a ten-cent knife But let us now introduce our hero:

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Havana, Sept. 26.—The general strike of workmen was to begin this morning, but some of the trades unions refused to order their men to go out. Among these were the draymen, the butchers, and the coachmen, who are still work-and the coachmen, who are still working.

While the strike was not an entire success, the situation was so grave that General Ludlow felt justified in taking control of the situation. He issued an order to Civil Governor Rivera that no more permits for public gatherings of any cort should be issued while there was any danger of a general strike.

The order also practically took all control of civil affarirs out of Rivera's hands. General Ludlow also assumed all responsibility in the matter of police work, and ordered the officers to disperse all gatherings of strikers, no matter on what pretext they were held.

on what pretext they were held, also ordered the arrest of twelve ders of various trade organizations a charge of sedition and disorderly leaders of various trade organizations on a charge of sedition and disorderly conduct.

Although the men were not disorderly in the American sense of the word, and the city was quiet. General Ludlow holds that the position of an agitator who favors a general strike, under the present conditions, is seditious, and he is treating the leaders of the present strike accordingly. He says frankly: "We will fill all the jails in Havana and put 1,000 persons in the Cabanas fortress if necessary to stop this strike."

strike."
General Ludlow tonight prepared a warning notice to the people of Havana which will be published tomorrow. It begins by saying that the United States is pledged to give a stable government to Cuba, and that it is going to give it. It declares that the majority of men are willing to work, but that agitators are intimidating them and putting the city in danger of starvation. The proclamation goes on:

"No man can be compelled to work against his will, but if he can work and will not, he is but a vagrant, and is a burden or worse on the comunity, and must take the responsibility for his own acts and for needless suffering which he imposes on his own kindred and the city at large."

must take the responsibility for ansown exts and for needless suffering which he imposes on his own kindred and the city at large."

Referring to the leaders of the strike. General Ludow says: "These are treacherous and seditious persons who are plotting both secretly and openly against the peace of the city and the tawful rights of citizens to earn a livelihood and enjoy the fruits of their labor, They are public enemies, flying the red flag of anarchy, violating the of the Laboring Class.

HOW IT IS DONE IN HAVANA. APING OF THE ARISTOCRACY.

Enslaved by Dividing His Forces in the Face of the Enemy.

One of the ridiculous things that is often noticed by observers of the laboring class is the multitude of clas divis next hero to occupy the stage as a publions that exist within the ranks of the lic attraction should be that determined laborers as a whole. The foreman and overseer will not meet socially the men shocked if they were asked to associate with the carpenter or the stone-mason These latter again are apt to put or airs when in the presence of unskilled laborers and if they are union men to consider themselves as of other blood than "scabs." Teachers, doctors, and Teachers, doctors, and professional men" generally deny that they are laborers at all and insist that they receive "salaries," not "wages. The same is true of architects, engineers, electricians, etc.

'All through the ranks of the workers this idiotic division runs until it reaches the height of the ludicrous in those situntions which even capitalism cannot sep sober about, no matter how much it is to its interest so to do, where the sales lady" will not speak to the wash lady" and the "first floor front" professes a proud ignorance concerning the family in the "third floor rear," and where the ownership of a goat or a pig creates rules of social exclusiveness as fronclad as those encircling the "four hundred."

These idiotic class divisions are of the utmost importance to the perpetuation of capitalism. The freedom of the laborer depends upon his learning to act as a class-upon his presenting a united front on the political field against his opponents, the capitalist class. the greatest obstacle to the attainmen of this position lies in the multitude of divisions that exist in the ranks of the workers. So long as one laborer looks with suspicion upon all others who do not belong within the magic So long as one laborer circle which he has drawn about himself he can, with each recurring election day, be made a fool of and persuaded to vote his masters into power over and over again. This the capitalist politician well knows and so he always seeks to play off one of these imaginary divisions of the laborers against some of the others, and while they are divided he rules.

When we come to examine into these divisions a little we find that like most of the "morality" and the customs of the laborers they are but cheap imitations of those of their masters-the capitalists. Seeing and reading of the social "exclusiveness" of the "aristocracy" the laborers ape them just as they ape the fashions and the language of those whose every interest is opposed to their own. But the trouble is here, as at so many other places, they imitate only the portion which is detrimental and leave that which would be helpful. They neglect to see that how ever much the capitalist class may split up in its affairs of pleasure it always stands together when it comes to ofering opposition to the workers. When the laborers do the same the hour of

They must realize that whatever difference may exist between different groups of laborers they have this in common-that all can only live by permission of the class that owns the means whereby they must live, to-wit: the tools and machinery of production and distribution. And if some snobbish clerk or "professional man" thinks that this excludes him let him say where he would work tomorrow morning if all those who own these things decided to get on without him. All the differences between brain and hand workers, killed and unskilled, between foreman and gang, or even between unionist and scab, are as but invisible openings beside of the mighty gulf of divergent interests that yawns between the employee and the employer, between producer and idler, between capitalist and laborer, between ruler and ruled.

And at this point as at every other we find the reformer and philanthropis the faithful ally of his employer and the traitor to the laboring class. We fessional philanthropists carefully explaining these distinctions at great ength to bourgeois audiences 'interesting characteristics" poor. We find that in the "clubs" and other organizations which they arrange they take pains not to encrozch upon these distintions, and then take great credit to themselves for their powers of close observation which has enabled them to thus spare the feelings of those among whom they are working. But at other points they are example when they are talking econ-omy, cleaniness, restriction of the pop-ulation, and other capitalist victues in be sure it may be replied that the idiocy of the laborers would be such that these prejudicies would make impossible the carrying on of any of the foresaid "good work" unless these litle distinctions are observed.

Anyone who really wishes to assist the laboring class must work from within, must make himself a part of heir struggle, and must identify himself with that portion of the class which is conscious of its mission and proposes to accomplish it. They must mpress at every turn that there is one lass division that is of paramount importance and before which all little imaginary social distinctions must be wept away. Only by thus swallowing up the lesser in the greater can true social solidarity be attained, can the liberty of the worker be secured, can capitalism be overthrown.

LABORERS TORTURED.

e Hundred and Seventy American Workers Being Gradually Tortured to Death and Insanity.

Edward Boyce, president of the estern Federation of Miners, recently rote as follows regarding conditions with his people: There is no change in the situation in Idaho. Court convened on the 4th inst., but adjourned for want of suffi-cient, evidence to convict any of the in Idaho. Court convened on the 4th inst., but adjourned for want of sufficient, evidence to convict any of the prisoners. Nevertheless, the governor is holding 170 of the men in the bull-pen. The eight men who escaped from the bull-pen are at large, and for some reason or other the horde of scab deputies does not care to hunt for them. There is no doubt the imported scabs are proving to be a failure in the mines. The men from Missouri have nearly all returned. The only place that scabs have come from recently is Leadville. More than a hundred came from there during the past week. The governor is pushing the fight more severely during the past two weeks than he did at the beginning. Nothing short of the complete extermination of the union men will satisfy him. The situation in British Columbia remains unchanged; however, four-fifths of the mines in the province compiled with the eight-hour law, the others operating under the contract system. From all appearances we will come out on top in that country.—Typographical Journal.

Yet the American laborers are going frenzies over the injustices to Dreyfus. If there ever had been wanting a proof that capitalist morality and sympathy always followed its material interests this furnishes it. A single individual in France sets a nation in an uproar while 170 American workingmen are being slowly tortured to death without a protest being made. The attorney for the men gives the following additional facts:

Additional facts:

For the last eight days, it is stated, the prisoners have been kept on a bread and water diet, and for trivial violations of prison rules have been pullshed by being obliged to stand for eight hours in the hot sun. For rafusing to work the straw has been taken from their bunks and they have been compelled to sleep on the bare boards. No tobacco is permitted, and the visitors are not allowed to speak to the prisoners.

It is alleged that under these unusual punishments the prisoners are break-ing down in health, and some, under the sun ordeal, have become crazed. These men have been imprisoned five months without trial, and in the meantwo sessions of the District Court the Old Utopianism.

BASED ON SOLID FOUNDATION

Relies of the Old Position Still Existent and Always Coming Up Cause Confusion.

The distinction between Utopian and cientific socialism has been made so often as to sometimes grow tiresome Especially since Engels wrote his masterly analysis on that subject it is a common line of argument to show how the latter developed from the former type of socialism. But so long as the Utopian type remains the argument holds good.

The essence of Utopianism is that its followers seek to change the world by changing people's ideas. Their idea of the universe and of social arrangements is that man can change everything when he will and that he will make any change that is reasonable and right. Therefore they hold that if any state of society can be shown to be a better one than the present and a majority of the people can be shown this superiority they will set to work and adopt the better one,

Up till the time of Mark and Engels this was the universal view of society. But they declared that the social organization was a direct outgrowth of the economic relations and that the former could be changed only by altering the latter. That is, they maintained that the manner in which the production and distribution of the food. clothing, houses and all the other things that went to satisfy the wants of men was carried on determined what kind of laws, customs and social arrangements they would have. showed that if a body of men lived by fishing and hunting they would have an altogether different social organization from a body of herdsmen, and that the herdsmen would have a much different state, morale and religion from the feudal barons and these latter in turn would be but little like the correspond-ing institutions in the age of machinery, corporations and monopoly

It was also proven that each stage of production with its corresponding social and political arrangement grew naturally out of the preceding one, and that the capitalistic stage could no more succeed the hunting than the babe could at once become the man without having first passed through childhood, boyhood and youth. Finally it was shown that each form of society made some class a ruling class and that this ruling class modeled all social institutions in their interests. These institutions were changed only when there arose another class more powerful than the rulers, whose interests demanded such a change. manded such a change. As soon as this law was discovered and explained It became evident that whoever would seek to change the social organization must do so by appealing to the class whose interest it was that the change be made. The possibility, desirability and means of securing such a change take your opinions and have your mind was no longer one of painting beautiful upon your slavery? Will you make no garding the promised change. It beprotest at the ballot box against those came a question of the marshalling of

Or that the proposed change was the logical outcome of the existing conditions. clety which it was desired to change who were of dominant economic in portance and whose interests lay in the other words, it was no longer Utopianism but Science with which the social agitator had to deal.

How does this apply to secialism? For thousands of years the effort had been made to secure the stage of society which socialism declares to be the coming one, by descriptions of his beauty and desirability. But all this had had absolutely no result. Here and there some brilliant thinker would gather around him a little coterie of admirers who would listen with great respect to his sayings and repeat them with great reverence, but leader was cone his "socialism" was gone with him and the world moved on as before. But with the coming of Marx and Engels the movement took another tack. Not that this was owing to their personal efforts alone. Such a supposition would contradict the very philosophy for which they stood. But they were the mouthplece through which the spirit of their time spoke. They pointed out the laws we have been discussing-showed that modern the working class was to be found a

THE COMING CONVENTION.

One of the first things that will at tract attention at the convention of the Socialist Labor Party will be the revision of the national constitution. While it is undoubtable true that the personal element entered into the recent trouble in no small degree, yet it is also a fact that much of the differences which arose could have been adjusted, with far less friction had it not been for certain inherent defects in the plan of organization and government. There have already been a large number of plans proposed to remedy defects and it is probable that if no steps are taken to adjust this matter prior to the convention the greater part of the time of the delegates there will be taken up with useless discussions on unimportant points. Many delegates will come with no definite idea of what they wish to accomplish and no idea whatever of the positions of others. The resuit will be that a committee on constitution and platform will be appointed who will either emerge from a deluge of "suggestions" and illy digested plans with a confused mass of contradictions and crude governmental machinery, or else some member with a plan ready to hand and with great powers of persuasion will make it possible to foist upon the party a constitution which may be found, when tested by actual experience to be impracticable or undesirable. True it is that almost any. thing would be preferable to our present fundamental law but that does not say that it would be the best obtainable with the means at our disposal,

There is still another point to be considered. No matter what the attitude of the convention may be toward proxy delegates or non-resident representation, there is no doubt that the smaller should be given every possible opporfunity to make their voice heard at every point and not be compelled to walt until the convention has done its work and then have the product thrown down before them with a choice to "eat or die." It is in the early formative period of the proceedings that individuality has the most opportunity to make it. self felt, and every member has an equal right to a voice at that stage. This has hitherto been thought impossible ewing to various questions of expense, time, etc. The result has been that at this one point the party has been forced to partake more or less of the character of a benevolent elective despotism and

In order to remedy this as much as possible we wish to tender the columns of The Workers' Call to the party for their use priorate the convention to discuss any questions of party management that may arise. For this purpose we will, as long as our space permits, publish all articles and suggestions of less than 500 words in length that may be sent in. Should we find that our space is being occupied to such an ex. tent (more then two or three columns) as to interfere with the value of the paper for propaganda purposes we shall ters and place only the gist of the suggestions before our readers. In so doing we shall use every precaution to preent misrepresenting any writer and to give all an equal voice. For this reason it will be manifestly impossible to pub lish any entire drafts of constitutions or platforms, and therefore writers will be required to confine their discussions, either to general outlines ithout details, or else to elaboration of specific points, without plans,

It is manifest that any such plan as this for publication will soon become unsatisfactory. As the convention approches it will be more and more necessary that details be elaborated and discussed at length. Under these conditions any attempt at editorial supervision would at once lead to charges of unfairness and would result in the creation of antagonisms, instead of the harmony as it is hoped may be produced by thorough discussion. Therefore it is desirable that some little time before the convention ALL plans for constitution and platform with such comments as any member desires to make shall be country. Manifestly it will be impossible to publish all these in any regular edition of The Workers' Call without sacrificing the edition so far as propaganda work is concerned. Therefore we the united efforts of the entire working propose to publish about three weeks class, or in other words, the Socialist prior to the meeting of the convention, a supplement, that shall include such proposals and statements and that shall months or yearly subscriber to the Call, In this way practically the entire memtry. Any such division of the party can then send its opinion upon such points to the convention and doubtless some means can easily be found for record ing such opinion or vote at the time when it will be most effective. This affords an opportunity for democratic action never before offered in any party in this country. Now the management of this paper is anxious to do all in their power to serve issue and distribute such a supplement But we do not feel that it is right to take from the funds of the paper the entire expense of such an issue, and therefore we wish to ask co-operation to the extent of meeting a portion of the expense. In order to, however, even here preserve as much of democracy as possible all articles of less than five hundred words will be published free. For all articles of greater length fifteen cents per hundred words will be asked. As an edition of about seven or eight thousand will probably be issued it will be seen that this is but a very small portion of the cost and can easily be met by anyone having anything of value. For if a suggestion is worth considering it is very probable that if the writer cannot himself afford to pay this slight cost he can persuade his section to endorse it and pay for publication.

This will place the entire subject matter of the convention before the entire country a sufficient time in advance to admit of its thorough discussion and thus enable the business of the convention itself to be perfored very much quicker and thus save a heavy expense to the party.

As a beginning around which such discussion can center a committee ap-

- in some centrally located city. He is to have nothing but purely clerical duties to perform.
- 2. Administration of national affairs to be in the hands of a National Committee representative of geographical divisions of the country, and to meet at such intervals as the party may decide. Details of management to be settled by correspondence.
- 3. Organizers or lecturers to be elected by geographical divisions.
- 4. No official press: all party papers to be owned by some regular division of the party or by some association composed exclusively of party members under the supervision and control of the party management.
- 5. Propositions sent out for referendum to be unaccompanied by opinions or arguments.

Organized labor has achieved a great victory. We must not attempt to minimize it. Its champions have compelled the managers of the Fall Festival to discard the scab-cut cornerstone. Otherwise that ardent supporter of organized labor, Wm. McKinley, would has refused to lend his presence to the great leg-pull, otherwise known as the Fall Festival.

There are several lessons in this The managers, representing the "business" interests of the city, could not afford to call the festival off and foregothe expected profits for the sake of a "principle." Therefore, a "victory for know it would be to accept it. But if this were true it would disprove the whole philosophy. At first this may sound like a ridiculous paradox. But if looked at a little closer it will be seen to be a scientific fact. Like every other position, theory, or social scheme, it cannot proceed upon the ideological plane. It will only appeal to those whose interests agree with the ends it points out. Here and there will be found exceptions, but no great mass of men ever move save in obedience to their self-interest. The same is true of the present society. Therefore the only, CLASS to which to appeal is the laborers. They should be taught to be conscious of their common interests, of their solidarity, their economic and political domination should be impressed upon them and they should be urged to forms were not to be comprehended as act in their own interests. We find them also among the socialists, where they hold evening discussions and circulate literature among bourgeois diletanti who join in a chorus of "Oh's and Ah's" at the beauty of the picture of a future state that is held up before them. They talk of great length of the "horrible conditions" of today anno scold, protest and "resolute" against the "inteligent classes" who refuse to take their panacea. Meantime things go on just as they always have so far as these "socialists" are concerned. They never get within a thousand miles of the actual people who must bring about the change they claim to so much desire, and only know of the laborers at all through some "sample" whom they have petted and coddled until he has lost all the characteristics both of a man and a worker and become as thoroughly bourgeois and as thoroughly idiotic as themselves. HISTORICAL MATERIALISM.

The First Statement of This Theory by Carl Mark

The following extract from the pre-face to Marx "Critique of Political Economy," a work written in 1859, which is of more than ordinary value. both historically, as giving a view of the manner in which the author arrived at his intellectual convictions, and also as being an extreme clear statement of the materialistic conception of society. Although this is often referred to in discussions of this theory, it is believed that it has never yet heretofore been translated into English.

"My main study was jurisprudence, which I followed, however, only as a subordinate discipline for history and philosophy. In 1842-43, as editor of the "Rheinischen Zeitung," I first had an opportunity to discuss the so-called material interests. The discussions of the Rheinish legislative chambers over the treft of timber, the official polemies was so overwhelmingly logical that to of Herr von Schaper, at that time president of the Rhine province with the "Rhinischen Zeitung," over the condition of the Mosel farmers, endless debates over free trade and protection, gave the first occasion for my activity with economic questions. On the contrary, up to this time where a good will "to go farther" had outweighed actual knowledge and facts, a weak philosoph. ical, colorless echo of the French socialism and communism had been heard in the "Rhinischen Zeitung."

"The first labor undertaken to solve the doubts that raged within me was a critical revision of the Hegelian legal philegophy, the result of which was given out in the introduction to the German-French Year-book' of 1844 My investigations led to the conclusions that the legal relations and political called universal development of the human spirit. I held that the anatomy of this society was to be found in its powandered as a result of the suggestion of Guizot. This result, once attained and that served as a guide to my studies, can be shortly formulated as fol totality of these productive relations creates the economic foundation of society the real basis upon which the judicial and political super-structure is raised, and which corresponds to certain definite forms of social conscious ness. The manner of production of the material life determines above all else the social, political and spiritual vital processes. It is not the consciousness of mankind that determines their existence, but on the contrary it is their existence that determines that consciousness. At a certain stage of their development the material powers of production come in conflict with the existing relations of production, or, to use a legal expression, with the property relations, inside of which they have hitherto moved. These relations are then fetters to the developing forms of the productive powers. There appears an epoch of social revolution. With the change of the economic foundations. the whole monstrous superstructure is transformed with greater or less rapidity. In the observations of such a transformation one must carefully dis tinguish between the material physically scientific and fundamental transformation in the economic relations o section Chicago offers the following general suggestions for a plan of national organization. Would they work up the prairie grass? Cannot any one see that it is to the interest of the community as a whole that each product be produced where there is the least expenditure of energy and in the most economical way, and this is some. thing the trust secures. To be sure there is a little something in the way the product is distributed that is not to the interest of the laboring class who produce it. But when that class gets ntelligent enough to conclude to vest the ownership of the plant in those who ise it and keep that $500,000 a year in their possession this part of it will be fixed up all right.

It is a very frequent excuse offered by those who are asked to study up socialism, that they have no time. Th ocialist can generally comfort himself with the reflection that a man with no more powers of foresight than such a emark implies will soon be furnished eisure by the competitive system in which to do plenty of studying.

The Communist Manifesto.

The weapons with which the bourgeoisie felled feudalism to the ground are now turned against the bourgeoiste

But not only has the bourgeoist forged the weapons that bring death to itself; it has also called into existence the men who are to wield those weapons-the modern working classthe proletarians.

In proportion as the bourgeoisle, i. e. capital, is developed, in the same proportion is the proletariat, the modern working class, developed; a class of laborers, who live only so long as they find work, and who find work only so long as their labor increases capital. These labors, who must sell themselves piecemeal, are a commodity, like every other article of commerce, and are consequently exposed to all the icissitudes of competition, to all the fluctuations of the market.

cheapest in the world—that is that the American wage slave receives the smallest relative share of what he produces of any worker on earth. That this is true is proven by the fact that the American capitalist is today underselling those of every other nation in the markets of the world. He can only to this because the labor power which he is able to purchase here is cheaper than that to be secured anywhere else.

Modern industry has converted the little workshop of the patriarchal master into the great factory of the industrial capitalist. Masses of laborers, crowded into the factory, are organized soldiers. As privates of the industrial army they are placed under the command of a perfect hierarchy of officers and sergeants. Not only are they slaves of the bourgeois class, and of the bourgeois state, they are daily and hourly enslaved by the machine, by the over-looker, and, above all, by the individual bourgeois manufacture himself. The more openly this despotism proclaims gain to be its end and the more petty, the more hateful and the more embittering it is.

figures as to child labor have been so outrageously juggled as to be nearly valueless but it is certain that in spite of philanthropic factory legislation and "Consumers' Deagues" the number of children engaged in gainful occupations is steadily increasing. Regarding women, the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor, states that since 1870 the number of women engaged in "Manufacturing and Mēchanical Industries" and in "Trade and Transportation" had increased, in round numbers from 375,000 in 1870 to 1,256,000 in 1890.

Some New Dilemmas Before the "Golden Rule" Candidate.

Every day that passes furnishes more proff of the foolishness or the criminality of the Jones movement. In the last issue of his paper there are two articles from him. One is headed "A Challenge But No Takers," and makes much of the idea that none of the candidates for governor will debate with him, and leaves the impression that they all want to dodge him. He knows he lies when he says this. He knows that the moment his challenge was issued it was accepted by Com. Rob't. Bandlow, the S. L. P. candidate for governor, and that it has been Jones that has been dodging ever since

On the same page with this is an ing for help from him and ending with "With assurances of keen appreciation of the great work that you are doing for the cause of human liberty and with all good will, I am, etc." Now it may be said that this is a mere form of address, but it strength is implied in manual labor, in expresses the idea of the whole article. Now unless Jones is so ignorant on labor matters as to be utterly unworthy of confidence he should know that one of the worst curses to the laborers of America today is the class of labor fakirs, and that Gompers is the personification of all that is bad in that class. Which side of the dilemma will you choose Mr. Jones?

Glimpses of the World-wide Struggle the Proletarian Army for Its Liberty.

The tide of socialism is still rising in Italy. More parliamentary elections have been held during the past month, and the socialist made surprising gains over previous contests. In Milan the government's candidate, Vallandi, came forward with a radical platform, but he secured only 567 votes, while Turati, the socialist nominee, received 4,346 votes, a remarkable showing when it is considered that thousands of workingmen are rest disfranchised from various causes. The warning closes by advising the workingmen if they want sight hours for a day's work to petition the ayuntamiento in the proper manner. It is believed that General Ludlow's methods will settle the strike.

Business in the city was in a bad way today, but traffic was not entirely stopped, General Ludlow's refusal to allow any meetings and the arrest of the leaders of the strikers will probably have the effect of discouraging would, be strikers, and those now on strike will probably go back to work.

This is the opinion of Governor Rivera, and he advised all committees who visited him today to urge the men to go back to work. While, as civil governor. Rivera does not approve of crushing the strike by force, and makes no protest as a citizen of Cuba, he said:

*I beleve a mistake has been made.

He as military governor, is sett. ling the strike, He has the right to do that, for he is above the civil iaw. It as civil governor, do not criticise him. I know my people, and I know that while they will sear a hated which will later crop out, when perhaps we shall not have the strong arm of the United States to upheld the government.

"When Chief of Police Cardenas came to me last Sunday to ask for orders I told him I had none to give him, for he was not a subordinate of mine. He told me that General Ludlow said to arrest a very man refusing to move on when ordered by the police, even if they had to put a thousand of them in Cabonas fortress. I told if I gave him any order it would be not arrest a single person, and if he did arrest anybody I would hold him responsible.

"I could have settled the strike without any trouble or without the use of three of it had the authority, but it has gone so far now that it is best to let if proceed. I will do or say nothing to hinder General Ludlow. He may be right, but I fear for the future. childlike or naive than the assumption on page 442 that the "captains of lidustry" and the drawers of dividends are identical?

Dr. Cummings is speaking of Dr. Veblen's characterization of the office of the "propertied class" as "parasitism" and asks, "What is the vital priniple back of this parasitism which enables it to survive and resist all efforts of society to be rid of it? No other answer is conceivable than that it is the same impelling circumstance which forces society in general to pay for what it gets; to pay wages for labor which it exacts." And on the next pages "The wages of the captains of industry are high, and if it be asked why are they high. the answer lies in the obvious fact that society pays these wages for the same reason that it pays any wages at all. It pays them in order to secure services which it obtains in return. It pays the least which it can pay and still secure those services, and there is no more reason for believing the services are not worth the wages paid than there s for thinking any labor is not worth the hire which it earns."

One would fancy that Dr. Cummings had been occupying some small hermit-age in one of the oldest halls at Cambridge, and that, although so young a nan, he had for thirty years shut himwithout lest factory smoke assail him, and not daring to look at a newspaper lest the mysterious "trust" confront him. What "services" does society re-ceive in return for the "wages" it pays to the Countess of Castellane or to Mrs. Bradley-Martin?

The reviewer declares (p. 441) that there is the same reason for thinking and Russia and Italy-yes, even in the bank president or the financier or England-is inspired and guided fro the captain of industry really earns his the universities. $25,000 a year as there is for thinking the man who digs in the street earns his $1.50 a day." Men and women not socialists have noted often the "indifferentism" which characterizes the students of economics plications it suggests constitutes the scientif. spirit, but rather that enthusdifferent its apparent conflict with personal advantage. When a university conference on labor was held at Kent Hall last June, and doctors of philosophy folling back in their chairs refused to answer questions on the ground of a too recent emergence from the dinner table, they were displaying not the scientific spirit but its absence

Sometimes a university resident whose seriousness of purpose has survived the ordeal, will tell the questioner that the surrounding dilletantism is due to the student's isolation from practical life and will disappear on centact with reality. But a readier explanation is at hand. There is an indifferentism to truth itself which shuts the eyes to whole classes of evidence lest one be inconvenienced in admitting their results. Such indifferentism has been seen before in times of unrest; It closed the mouths of Oxford residents when political liberty was at stake in England; it placed a censorship on debates in American colleges when the slavery question was under discuss in the 50's. If students of economics in American universities today allow this indifferentism to close not only lips but eyes to the economic revolution in self away with the books of the first half the midst of which they live, they will of this century, not venturing to peep be not merely following precedents of without lest factory smoke assail him, which the past has been full. They will be cutting themselves off from a movement of which the universities are the rightful leasers. Were Dr. Cummings to come out of his hermitage for even a single day, he need not turn to socialist writings to confute his next statement, for every quotation of the stock exchange, every "promoter" in the United Kingdom, every breath that blows from the Wardner mines, and even the columns of the trade journals themselves, would smile contradition at the author is speaking of private wealth) is, therefore, accumulated earnings, not accumulated confiscations of the earnings of others."

That has a loud sound but we wonder

That has a loud sound but we wonder how they are going to "adopt the tacties of the enemy" in the political field when they have shown themselves so utterly incapable of adopting those tacties in the economic field. It may be just whispered in the ears of these frenzied "antis" that the political is always the reflection of the economic situation and that so long as the principle of private property in the instru-ments of production and distribution, upon which the trust rests, remains it crush their poor economically wrecked creatures as easily in the political world as it already has in the world of business.

A GOVERNMENT STRIKE.

An Illustration of What Is Accomplished

There are a few point in connection by a. "Step-at-time."

There are a few point in connection with the proposed strike on the Federal building in this city which the members of the labor unions may not have considered. If they have considered them at all. A strike against the United States is radically different from a strike against private individuals or even public corporations. The United States is a slow moving institution, as befits THE BIGGEST CORPORATION IN THIS WORLD. It does not care whether it builds fast or slow. It may be ten, fifteen or twenty years in constructing its buildings. Time is a matter of indifference in its calculations. Unions come and go, but the government goes on forever. If its buildings are not finished at a specified time it rents others. It is in no danger of financial loss, for THE PEOPLE FOOT THE BILLS. If there shall be a strike here the government will go on building elsewhere, where strikers are strike here the government will go on building elsewhere, where strikers are not striking and walking delegates are not walking. It can wait until the un-ions have to succumb from sheer weari-ness.—Chicago Tribune.

Here are a few points of especial inerest to our "state socialist" friends fact it is as clearly put a statemen of the capitalist position on these lines could be well set forth. And it is e only correct position. There is no disputing it. So long as the govern ment and "the people who foot the hills" of "the biggest corporation in this belong to the capitalist class and move in obedience to capitalist class interests, the workers not only nothing to gain by state ownership of industry but such ewnership simply centralizes and concentrates the ers of capitalism. The "first step" must be the eapture of the powers of government by a class-conscious so-cialist party and the organization of that government in the interest of the laborers. Until then we may expect to read such editorials as the above.

LIPTON'S EMPLOYEES.

Was Paid For.

While Sir Thomas Linton is before the American public it is well to just keep one eye on him. The following from London Justice is interesting:

A GREAT (AND GOOD) ENGLISH-

A GREAT (AND GOOD) ENGLISH-MAN.

So Sir Thomas Lipton has been fined only 50 pounds for making ready to put poisonous fruit into his jam-pots. It was only the other day that people were protesting against his weighing in heavy paper with his quarters of a pound of tea. It is a great career. And now Sir Thomas is defending the honor of the English flag with the "Shannock" against the "Columbia," Clearly a worthy champion of modern capitalism, as all must admit, But now touching that 100,000 pounds which the great (and good) Sir Thomas was to apply to the praiseworthy attempt to secure for Loudon workmen sound, good, wholesome food properly served end cooked. Was it, on second thoughts, used to buy rotten fruit cheap? Or what has become of the money and the philanthropic motives together? Or course we know that Lipton is neither better or worse than other folks in his kidney. But it is just as well, now and then, to point out that the whole thing hangs together. One makes his pount by buying and selling bad fruit, another secures a revenue by drawing rents from a whole street of disorderly houses. Tory, Liberal-Unjonist, Liberal and Radical-they all do it. The money does not smell. And the workers are quite contented. So call is for the best in the best of capitalist worlds possible.

ONE STEP MORE.

The Steel Trust Makes One More Ad

In commercial circles last night it was rumored that the war department had granted permission to the Calumet and Chicago Canal and Dock company to dock out along the lake shore frontage of the company's shore grounds at South Chicago. No confirmation of the rumor could be had last night from the officers of the eagineer's degartment of the war department. It was known that the canal and dock company had sade such a request of the war depart. that the canal and dock company had made such a request of the war depart-ment, and engineers under Maj. made a survey of the property, with a recommendation to the war department at Washington.

If such permission has been granted it is said to mean that the Calumet and Chicago Canal and Dock company, of which Lesile Carter is president, will have almost a monopoly of the Calumet harbor. It will be able to construct slips, docks and piers at South Chicago for a distance of 1,000 feet into the lake and extending alons the shore from the Calumet river to 94th street. Connection is made by some between the recent decision of the government to construct breakwaters off the Calumet river and the permission, which is said to have just given the canal and dock company possession of the Calumet harbor.—Chicago Record.

This is one more step in the comple-

This is one more step in the complefrom week to week of the progress of the great Rockefeller Steel trust. Docks, steamboat lines, fron mines steel works, all are gradually coming within its grasp. Wonder why Bryan. Pingree, etc., do not get after it with their patent anti-trust panaceas?

Every day that passes but increases the certainty of the war in the Transvaal. There is no doubt but what English capitalists have determined to hav those diamond and gold mines. And she will have them. If the products of English capitalism are not to be swept from the markets of the world by the of America then she must keep step with America's expansion. Africa and Asia must be the battle ground on which modern capitalism will array its slaves for the last great struggle. It will be the last battle in which workers will fight their master's battles. The day is almost upon us when those workers will decide to fight their own battles and attack their own enemiesthe capitalist class.

PLATFORM.

The Socialist harder Party of the United States, in convention assembled, re-asserts the inalienable rights of all men to lin, liberty and the parisuit of happiness.

With the founders of Ne American republic we hold that the purpose of government is to secure wary citizent in the employment of this right; but in the right of our social conditions we hold furthermore, that no such right can be exercised under a system of consumo inequality, essentially destructive of life of liberty and of happiness.

With its founders of this republic we hold that the true theory of politics is that the machinery of government must be evented and controlled by the whole people; but in the light of our industrial fewelopment we hold, furthermore, that the true theory of consentics is that the machinery of production must likewise belong to the people in common.

To the obvious fact that our despects eystem of conomics is the direct opposite of our democratic system of politics can plainly be traced the extended of a privileged chas, the corruption of government by that class, the allemation of public property, public franchess and public functions to that the abject dependence of the mightless of nations upon that class, the contraction is that in the state of the contraction of the sealth which it alone proven, is denied the means of estimation, and, by companions is discussed in the state of the consequence of He.

Ignorance and misery, with all their concordinat evils, are perpetuated, that the people may be explicated and invention are discrete from their humans purposes to the ensurement of women and explication and invention are discreted from their humans purposes to the ensurement of women and explication of the concentration of th ept in bondage.

Science and invention are diverted from their humans purpose to the enslavement of women and hildren.

Against such a system the Socialist Labor Party once more enters its protest. Once more it efterates its fundamental declaration that private property in the natural sources of production and in the instruments of labor is the obvious cause of all economic servitude and political dependence.

The time is fast coming when, in the natural course of social evolution, this system, through the lestructive action of its failures and orises on the one hand, and the constructive tendencies of its rusts and other capitalistic combinations on the one hand, shall have worked out its own downfall.

We, therefore, ceil upon the wage workers of the United States, and upon all honest citizena, to rights and determined to conquer them by taking possession of the public powers; so that, held ogether by an indomitable spirit of solidarity under the mest trying conditions of the present class truggle we may put a summary end to that barbarons struggle by the solution of classes, the restoration of the land and of all the means of production, transportation and distribution to the poole as a officially only, and the substitution of the Cooperative Commonwealth for the present state of planess production, industrial war and social disorder; a commonwealth in which every worker shall have the categories and full benefit of his faculities multiplied by all the medern factors of civilization.

Introdeliate Deminids.

With a view to immediate improvement in the condition of labor we present the following demands:

1. Reduction of the hours of labor in properties to the progress of production.

2. The United States shall obtain nonsession of the railroads, canals, telegenate, teleghones and all other means of public transportation and communication; the employee to operate the same co-pressively under the control of the Federal government and to elect their own superior officers, at no employees shall be discharged for political reasons.

2. The numericalities shall obtain possession of the local railroads, ferries, water works, electric localities and industries requiring meanicipal franchises; the employees to operate the same co-operatively under the control of the numerical admunistration and to elect their own superior officers, but no employees shall be discharged for political reasons.

4. The public lands declared inalienable. Revocation of all find grants to corporations or individuals, the conditions of which have not been complied with.

5. The United States to have the exclusive right to issue money.

6. Congressional legislation providing for the scientific management of forests and waterways, and prohibiting the waste of the natural resources of the country.
