RUDYARD KIPLING

The Singer of Capitalist Pranks for "Tarzal Attiahs."

CAPITALIST POETIC LICENSE.

"A Pulp for a Century of a "Madman, Bawser? Who Are We Willing to Be Poisoned?"

Evidently Kipling, the undiscarded post of "Tarzal Attiahs," is not in favor of the usual poetic license. He prefers his. The principal object of this verse is to throw a sable light on the capitalist system as a whole. It is an adequate tribute to the poet's art, for it is not every man who can write poetry and work as a laborer at the same time. The poet is not so much a purveyor of words as a producer of ideas, and his ideas are not so much in words as in deeds. The poet is not a self-made man, but a man who makes himself. The poet is not a man who is, but a man who does. The poet is not a man who talks, but a man who acts. The poet is not a man who is, but a man who does. The poet is not a man who talks, but a man who acts. The poet is not a man who is, but a man who does. The poet is not a man who talks, but a man who acts. The poet is not a man who is, but a man who does. The poet is not a man who talks, but a man who acts. The poet is not a man who is, but a man who does. The Socialist Vote.

The Socialist Party in this city is determined to have the Socialist book Free as a part of its programme. It will make no charge for it, and all who subscribe will receive it gratis. It will be sent to each subscriber as it is issued.

There you have the special offer. It is sure to be a big success. Trade will not be kept off the streets, as in the case of the free books. It will in fact increase the sale of the paper.

A McMenemy, as manager. He will make no charge for it, but will give it to each subscriber as it is issued.

Of course it will not cost the paper anything, but it will be a great help to the Socialist Party. It will enable them to improve their standing in the city, and to get more subscribers.
