Seven Kansas City Socialists Who Opposed War and Conscription, Up for Two Year Term

The Journey to The Federal Prison of Our Seven Socialist Americans

(Elia Reece Brown)

"Come, I will make the continent indissoluble. I will make the most profitable race to every yet shut upon. I will make divine Magnetic lands, with the love of comrades, with the Me-life-long of Canada's progress."—Whittman's Song of Democracy.

This song rang through my soul today, as I looked into the faces of the seven comrades gathered for the last time in the office of The Workers' World. Here, with brave hearts, their wives and sisters said their "good-byes." Somehow, we all felt the sacred mission to consecrate every soul with the Spirit- Democracy—and to the principle of True Internationalism, believing that the workers of all the world are all of our blood, these seven upholders of the sacred cause with cheerfulness strewed their words on their lips—but who, with the keen despair of their hearts waver at the ignobility and stupidity of the workers who blindly support the autocracy, that has killed all democratic rights, to think, speak or write one’s true convictions. Their courage, their willingness to stand the supreme test for their ideals—American ideals, the ideals of the great American, Lincoln, and the true prophet of Democracy, Walt Whitman. This courage and self-sacrificing will influence thousands of workers inside and outside of this great country. We feel it is our duty to help them in this great crusade for justice. We feel it is our duty to help them in this great crusade for justice.

A FINAL APPEAL

July 18, 1919.

Dear Comrade:

From the time we left the Platte County Jail, last October, until today, we have been giving our last thought and energy to the establishment of the Workers’ World. We have been doing this because we know that Socialism will never be realized except when it has a voice, an instrument of publicity, which will place Socialism before the workers in season and out as the only road toward a greater freedom and a saner society. The Socialist press is the only hope for our country and our class.

Today we are forced to drop this work to begin a two-year sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary for our opposition to an immoral war. The work that we have been doing should not be allowed to stop for one moment.

We are asking you to do something to take our place in this work during our enforced vacation. If you cannot give the personal work, you can at least give financial assistance. You should sign an Endowment Fund pledge, to donate a certain amount each week to the paper—and then see that the pledge is promptly fulfilled.

Can we not expect your help in this work? Do your part in keeping the Workers’ World in the field as a weapon for revolutionary Socialism.

Yours for the Workers’ World,
Elia R. Brewer
William Brewer
T. R. Sullivan.

We Never Forget!

Enclosed find $5...to keep the paper going. You can depend on me for $5 a week for subscriptions or donations as long as the boys are in prison.
The Political Realignment
By Scott Norman

The American Labor Party has had its first test in the Chicago election. In all, about 120,000 votes were cast for the Labor Party ticket, 6 per cent more than for the tickets of the non-socialistic parties. While the party has made no gains, it has not lost any ground.

The American party, founded 20 years ago, has always been a local political organization, and in its present form it is a political party. It is a party of the laboring class, and its aim is to work for the benefit of the working class.

Rebellion in India!

Figures are dull enough but facts are even more so, according to J. Tamils. The situation in India is becoming increasingly alarming. The British government has recently imposed a ban on the publication of newspapers in Tamil Nadu, a state in the south of India. This decision has been met with protests from the Tamil people, who see it as a violation of their right to freedom of expression.

The Tamil Nadu government has also announced plans to introduce a new law that would criminalize the use of the Tamil language in public places. This move is likely to further escalate tensions between the Tamil people and the Indian government.

A Story

A young man was walking down the street when he noticed a group of people gathered around a tree. They were discussing a recent political event that had caused a lot of controversy.

The young man approached the group and listened to their conversation. He was shocked to hear that many people were upset about the government's decision to ban the publication of newspapers in Tamil Nadu.

The young man decided to take action. He gathered a small group of friends and together they started a petition calling for the government to lift the ban on newspaper publication.

Their petition gained a lot of support, and soon they were joined by hundreds of other people. The government eventually relented, allowing the newspapers to be published again.

The young man and his friends were hailed as heroes, and their story became a symbol of hope for the Tamil people.
