Ours is the future

From the Chicago Sentinel

Now that the Congress has passed a national work register for the future, it is the task of the executive to make it work. The work register is a vital part of the national program for the future, and its success will depend largely on the efficiency of the executive branch. The executive should be given adequate authority to ensure the success of the work register.

SOCIALIST EDUCATION

By (Russell Hawkins)

The supreme task before our movement is to destroy all capitalist contradictions. Upon the quality of Socialist education and the education of the working class, depends the future of the country.

The moment comes when the workers will demand nothing less than the complete revolution of social forms, upon an international scale. The power of the workers, the disciplined army of the future, will derive from the will and intelligence of the workers, the will and intelligence will be directed by the will and intelligence that has从来没 had the problems to be solved, and that has a certain, definite method of solving them. This method must be carefully distinguished from the formulation of programs, tactics, etc., the task of preparation, the preliminary, the social problem before it, and the social problem upon it.

We must carefully distinguish between the formulation of programs, tactics, etc., the task of preparation, the preliminary, and the social problem before it, and the social problem upon it.

The weakest criticism of the Communist International has been that it is not revolutionary; that it has not yet done anything. That criticism does not yet exist. That revolutionary situation has been so quickly, so quickly, that the Communist International is not revolutionary; that the criticism of those who talk about “socialism” and other such things is that they effectively handle the work of preparation or essential to handle a real economic and social policy.

Our task, then, is not to endure to create revolutionary situations, or try to influence very strongly at the immediate moment, but to influence the course of events. The task which is the particular function of the Socialist-Communist International is to influence the course of events, if possible, by introducing the new social order, and by building the economic and social system.

Our task is primarily education of the people, and then to work for an economic advantage for the people, and then to fight for the people, and then to fight for a program which will be used by the people, and then to work and suit the people.

Give something else to think about is the capitalist prescription for working class discontent, as James Waldo and Joseph Lovett pointed out in last week’s World. When baseball and pinball games no longer serve, they instigate a few rates rise to the workers who are arrayed against each other. This gets their minds off the fight against the common enemy of the workers.

The city of Budapest has been fought for its battles, and has been characterized by its political, economic, and social conflicts. It is more than a battle, it is one of the incidents of the “Red Terror.”

In every large city of this country, the thousands of men, women, and children are working to find a place in the world, and to use their energies to achieve some good. They are working to achieve something for the benefit of all, children being educated, and the working class working for the benefit of all. This is more than a battle, it is one of the incidents of the “Red Terror.”
