The Attack of British Imperialism upon Egypt.

By Observer (London)

The attack of British imperialism upon Egypt raises a great number of problems in all their seriousness. If we drive through these points of the ultimatum, the purpose of which is to humble the Egyptian government and brutally to muzzle the present British imperialim with regard to the whole East, we find before all three decisive points in the action of the British government: First, the further reduction of the independence of Egypt; secondly, the final annexation of the Sudan, and thirdly the immediate declaration to the other imperial powers, benefiting from the Egyptian market, that the Abyssins have not the right to interfere with the Egyptian imperialist policy.

The so-called independence of Egypt was established by the London Protocol of October 1875. On the 18th February, 1922, which constituted an attempt to overcome the support of the native bourgeoisie, Zulfikar Pascha, did not hesitate to cast aside the Protocol. Egypt, as the territory, is of vital importance. The population of the Sudan is overwhelmingly in love with British rule, but the Sudanese are not likely to be forgotten. And the British government is well aware of this.

The application of the London Protocol was, in effect, a declaration of war on the British commerce and investments in Egypt. This Protocol was a great step forward in the direction of the establishment of full Imperialism in Egypt.

The attack of British imperialism upon Egypt is the more dangerous, for it is carried on by the British authorities of the control of the country.

The Corruption in the German Ebert Republic

by Z. Z. (Berlin)

The Americanization of Germany, the Dauers colony, is making rapid strides. The embattled M. M. of 1929, the L. C. L. of 1925, the Ebert government, and the Social Democratic party, are today more closely bound together than ever before. This is due to the fact that the Ebert government has now become a virtual German Dauers colony, and that its every move is being closely watched by the American embassies in Berlin. The Ebert government has now become a virtual German Dauers colony, and that its every move is being closely watched by the American embassies in Berlin.

The revelation in the corruption scandal regarding the bribery of the presidential elections, has led to the resignation of the Ebert government. This is the first time in the history of Germany that a government has resigned due to corruption. The Ebert government has been in power for over a year, and during that time, it has been accused of various corruption scandals. The latest one is the bribery of the presidential elections.

The Ebert government has been accused of taking bribes to influence the outcome of the presidential elections. According to reports, the Ebert government offered bribes to the candidates to secure their victory. The Ebert government has denied these allegations, but the evidence against them is overwhelming.

The resignation of the Ebert government has led to a political crisis in Germany. The opposition parties have demanded a new government, and the Social Democratic party has called for early elections. The future of Germany is uncertain, and the country is facing a difficult period.
