Govt. Must Intervene To End Prosecution Farce

A LMOST two years after the treason arrests on December 5, 1956, and four years since the police started investigating an allegation of treason against the foremost leaders of the Congress movement, the Crown case collapsed before the Special Court in Pretoria on Monday.

The accused were not even asked to plead to the charge, because the

These Orlando schoolboys spent their ten days holiday in the pass queue at the location's influx control offices. If their teachess asked them to write essays about how they spent their vacation, it would make pretty dull reading. From morning till evening, day in and day out, they were made to sit outside on the lawn. At the end of the day they were told to go home and come back the next morning. The boys are under 16 and do not carry passes but they run the risk of being caught up in pass raids unless they have papers to show that they are scholars.

Anti-Communism Payes The Way For Fascism

THE Congress of Democrats and the so-called "Communists" in the Congress movement seem to be under heavy fire from certain guarters these days. It is understandable that the Nationalists and other supporters of White supremacy should attack them. What is not so clear is why those who profess to be anti-Nationalist should spend so much time running them down and positively organising campaigns against them.

No organisation or individual, of course, is exempt from criticism, and it is at all times open to anybody to voice that criticism and to expound a different point of view. Even when two or more organisations take action together, they should be free to criticise one another's policies so long as that criticism does not disrupt their unity.

does not disrupt their unity. But what can we think of those who, claiming to fight the same enemy, refuse to unite their forces? Churchill and Stalin joined hands to fight the Nazis during the last war. Why cannot the various groups of anti-Nationalists get together in the same spirit and face their common enemy, the Nationalist Government?

The reason is: BECAUSE SOME PEOPLE HATE COM-MUNISM MORE THAN THEY HATE THE NATIONALIST GOVERNMENT OF DR. VERWOERD.

Of course they are free to think like that if they want to. But they must understand the lessons of history. And the one big lesson which history has taught us in the last 30 years is that those for whom anti-Communism is an obsession eventually help to pave the way for fascism.

The German Social Democrats refused to unite with the Communists, and so paved the way for Hitler. The French Socialists refused to unite with the Communists and so paved the way for de Gaulle-nay, even joined his Government rather than accept the alternative of a Popular Front.

Thus do the anti-Communists betray the cause they profess to espouse. And in this country, too, we say those who refuse to co-operate with COD because they think it is Communistic will eventually find themselves in Verwoerd's camp. They are already operating their own anti-Communism Act; it will not take long

We say to all anti-Nationalists who are sincere and true democrats: put first things first. It is the Nationalist Government which is in power, not the Communists. It is the Nationalist Government's laws which oppress us, the Nationalist Government's police who arrest and persecute us.

We must learn to put aside our prejudices and unite to defend ourselves against the real enemy who is attacking us all right now. Failure to do so can only strengthen the Nationalist enemy and weaken the democratic front, making the road to liberation infinitely longer and more difficult.

have been exterminated.

What price those who have been objecting to Little Lemons being sent up in synthils and the experimenting with dogs for the prolongation of life?

A^N Afrikaans paper up here says that since "snobbery" has been comparatively foreign to the Afrikaner people, attempts to find an Afrikaans translation for this word have been of no use. Now it appears that there is snob-bery among the volk.

So what's wrong with the word snobbery?"

Already when the court assem-bled there was excitement at the wews of the Crown's application to amend the indictment still further which, in the words of Mr. Justice Rumpff, cut out nine-tenths of the case.

Excitement reached a higher pitch when Mr. Justice Rumpli inter-rupted Mr. Parow soon after he berupted Mr. Frow soon after he be-gan his amendment application say-ing: "It seems that the Attorney-General when drawing up the in-dictiment did not give full consider-ation to the implications of allega-

JACQUES Soustelle, 46, energetic Minister of Information and French Premier de Gaulle's right hand man since the days of the war, has over the past few months felt it wise to tone down his speeches in order not to embarrass de Gaulle in his effort to present himself as the kindly father who would lead France to glory without doing GENERAL ELECTIONS anyone any harm.

The all-out attack against the French Communist Party will probably be delayed, however, until after the general elections in France next month. de Gaulle no doubt feels that it will be possible to cash in on his ment pretine at the moment to But shortly before the recent referendum in France, Soustelle referendum in Fushed with the prospects of suc-cess at the referendum, he called openly for the suppression of what is the main obstacle to the great prestige at the moment to smash the Communist Party by electoral means. SPACE TRAVEL IS NOTHING NEW

DO you think that the idea of space travel is something new? Twenty years old? Fifty? A hundred? Nothing of the sort. For nearly two thousand years space travel has been a topic with the writers of stories-right back to the time of Ancient Greece.

It was Lucian, the Greek historian, who pioneered space fic-tion some 1,800 years ago. A man of broad vision, he refused to be worried by petty scientific details. His heroes were the crew of a ship sailing off the coast of Greece, One day a fierce whirlwind one day a netce whithinks it through the air, depositing it a week later on the Moon. The crew get on well with the inhabit-ants and help them wage war on MOON LANDING

Lucian followed this work up with a sequel in which the hero acquires the wing of a vulture and acquires the wing of a valute and the wing of an eagle and teaches himself to fly. He takes off and lands on the Moon, which he uses as a base for forays to nearby planets, thus anticipating by a couple of thousand years some of the plans being put forward today her ambridges accentices ambitions sci ntists

This was probably due less to a lack that the Church had decided there was no world besides the Earth. Any writer who dared to suggest otherwise run the risk of cading his works crickly suppressed.

Cyrano's next attempt at space travel uses a modern device-rockets. He festoons himself with small rockets which he ignites in way. The NAD's vindictive treatment of Mrs. Msutu is certain-ly not helping to smooth its way for the application of Verstages and in no time has landed the surface of the Moo woerd's decrees in the Re-MOON PARADISE

He plans his escape with great originality— by building a machine to take his by building a machine to take him to the sun. This consists of a box rather like a sedan chair with a series of oles in top and bottom. On top is what the intrepid inventor calls an "icosahedron," and which he vaguely describes as being made of crystal. He steps into the con-

BARON VON MUNCHHAUSEN It is not until the next century that we learn more concerning the people of the Moon from an au-thority who is about as reliable as Cyrano-the notorious Baron von Munchhausen. His method of space travel owes quite a lot to Lucian, for he tells us how, while sailing the South Seas, " a hurri-cane blew our ship at least a thousand leagues above the sur-face of the water and we travelled at a prodigious rate for six weeks above the clouds. "At last we discovered a great land in the sky, like a sthing island, round and bright; where coming into a convenient harbour we went on shore and found it was inhabited." It was the Moon

H. G. WELLS H. G. WELLS Verne's successor in the space fiction realm, H. G. Wells, was guilty of grave blunders when he wrote his version of Moon explo-ration. Confronted with the old problem of beating gravity, Wells put his tongue in his check and called on to invent a strate mu-stance called "Cavorie" which stance called "Cavorite" which screened the objects it surrounded from the gravitational pull of the earth. Even to Wells's most fervent admirers this artifice was too hard to swallow. His space traveller's adventures on the Moon with Selenites and Moon-

Bosses' Responsibility To Increase African Wages

JOHANNESBURG.

JOHANNESBURG. "THE increases in African in-comes have failed by a sub-stantial margin to keep pace with rising costs and . . . whatever the deliciencies in African wages may have been fourieen years ago, the position is well over three times as had at present," asys an article by a leading Rece Industrialit in a re-cent assae of the "South African Engineer."

"The reason for this deterioration is, of course, not far to seek," the article goes on "A pointer is ob-tained from the fact that unskilled labourers in Johanneburg, not covered by a specific wage award, are paid 48 12s. 3d, per month in-creasing to £8 16s. 7d. on the basis of a determination made in 1942 and not since revised.

made the remedy extremely difficult. No industry welcomes a wage de-mand, but when the situation arises the industry concerned settles down to readjust itself and some of the results are certainly beneficial to all concerned . . .

"When, however, the situation has been allowed to deteriorate so far that to conform to the minimum demands of social justice it would probably be necessary virtually to double the wages of a large part of the country's labour force, it is not surprising that the problem of resurprising that the problem of re-adjustment may appear genuinely beyond the abilities of most em-ployers and that they should en-deavour to blind themselves to its existence."

THE REMEDY

THE REMEDY Pointing out that low wages re-sult in increased crime, discase and "the steady growth of race harred and the receptiveness of the Non-European population to teachings subversive of a social order which offers them only poverty and hard-ship," the article says action must share. Employer must not wait for the Government to move.

"The Government may have been remiss in not allowing workers to form unions to force you to pay them more. It may even have been more remiss in not compelling you to pay them more anyway."

This man acted as though his will had been paralysed. It all scemed too much for him.

NO MONEY

He had no money for the fare to Basutoland, and though the order to leave took effect imme-diately he had made no move to try to find the fare. Where was it to come from?

There was barely any food in the house, and the children were half-naked, with only portions of blankets pinned about their shoulders

The Kckeletses had to vacate the Wattville house because the next tenants were waiting to move in, but still Joel Kckeletse seemed unable to make any move.

He talked expressionlessly, when he could be drawn into saying something, and seemed incapable of making plans for himself, wife and children.

Two weeks later when New Age again visited his house he had al-ready left. Another family had been scattered to the winds.

21st CONGRESS OF C.P.S.U. NEXT JANUARY

THE 21st Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is due to take place in January next year. This was announced in Moscow recently after a plenary meeting of the central com-mittee of the CPSU had been held.

The 21st Congress is not likely to cover the same wide ground of international and domestic affairs that was dealt with at the historic 20th Congress in February 1956.

In fact, the forthcoming Con-gress has been labelled a "special" congress to emphasise its specific agenda: to discuss target figures for the development of the Soviet economy in the period from 1959 to 1965.

The report to the Congress, which will form the basis of Con-gress discussion, will be presented by the first secretary of the central committee, Mr. Khruschov, committee, Mr. Knruschov, The chief theses of the report will be published in the press be-forehand so that they may be dis-cussed by the widest sections of the population.

Provide a comment on the deci-sion to hold the 21st Congress: "It opens up new and magnificent prospects for the Soviet Union."
